Holy Week Services Begin

A number of churches will begin observance of the Christian Holy Week today with Maundy Thursday services, and tomorrow most stores will close between noon and 3 p.m. and worshippers will gather at Christ Episcopal Church for Good Friday services.

At South Church the congregation will meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight for the annual Memorial Communion and reception of new members. At the same hour members of Faith Lutheran Church will meet at Peabody House on the Phillips Academy campus for communion and at 8 p.m. a Communion service will be held at West Parish Church.

An original sacred drama is to be presented at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Free Church following Communion. Written by Marina DeHaas, the play depicts the events of Holy Week which followed the Last Supper. In the cast will be Margaret Glog, William Paterson, William Lindstrom, Douglas Hamilton and J. Allyn Bradford. The author and Ina Carver will direct the performance.

The Good Friday Service at Christ Church is sponsored by the Andover Council of Churches and arranged by Rev. Robert Bossdorf of Ballard Vale United Church.

During the three-hour period, eight ministers offer a continuing service of scripture reading, meditation and prayer. Participating will be Rev. Hartland Gifford of Faith Lutheran; Rev. Earl Robinson, Baptist; Rev. Bossdorf; Rev. J. Edison Pike of Christ Church; Rev. David Allen, Christ Church Curate; Rev. Thomas D. Dipko and Rev. Robert L. Rasche of South Church; and Rev. J. Allyn Bradford of Free Church.

St. Augustine's Church has scheduled the only Saturday service. It will be held at 10:45 p.m. and will include The Service of Light, The Baptismal Service and the Eucharistic Service, the solemn service of the Eucharistic vigil.

There will be early morning services at three churches on Easter Sunday. West Church will conduct a Sunrise Service at 5:30 a.m. just inside the arch at West Parish Cemetery and the Faith Church congregation will meet at 6:30 a.m. to worship at the site for its new building at the corner of Rt. 28 and Wildwood Rd. Coffee and donuts will be served by the Altar Guild following this service.

The first of three services at Christ Church will be held at 7 a.m. Communion will be included.

AEA Head Favors Legalizing Strikes

Bruce MacDonald, president of the Andover Education Assn., said this week that he will urge his directors to endorse efforts of the Massachusetts Teachers Assn. to have the state collective bargaining law altered to permit teachers to strike.

The board will meet April 3. MacDonald, who is on the MTA's legislation committee, said he did not initially favor the right to strike for teachers. "But because of some of the situations that have arisen here in Massachusetts, I now feel the teachers need this (right) as a tool," he added to explain his new position.

MacDonald said that because of his position on the MTA committee, he knew in advance of public announcement that the teachers' organization would submit a late-file

ABC Plan Is OK'd

The School Committee gave unanimous approval Tuesday for an ABC program for disadvantaged boys at Andover High School to begin with the fall term, 1967.

The board's action was in keeping with the vote of the March 11 Town Meeting which indicated its support for the citizen-sponsored plan with a vote of 528 to 119.

Presented at the meeting was a petition from 100 Shawsheen school parents objecting to the school department's plan for temporarily relocating all sixth graders next term to relieve congestion in the elementary schools. The parents, members of the PTA, object to placing sixth graders in sections of junior high facilities and to their transportation on busses with older students.

Fred Tarbox, chairman of the board for the Greater Lawrence Regional Vocational - Technical High School, met with the committee to discuss proposals for an addition to the 17-month-old facility.

Chairman Louis Galbiati asked Supt. Erickson to solicit information from secondary school

'B' Rating Asked For Merrimack

The League of Women Voters, Merrimack River area group, is prepared to recommend to the Department of Natural Resources at a hearing in Lowell on April 4 that it give the Merrimack River a "B" classification when it makes a final determination as to how clean communities located on its banks must be prepared to make the heavily polluted stream.

This position will be at odds with that of the Central Merrimack Valley Regional Planning District Commission which went on record late last week as recommending a "C" classification.

The State reportedly has indicated unofficially that it also favors a "C" rating for the river which runs through a series of highly industrialized communities.

Bunny Alters Andover Plans

Confronted with the possibility of either having to plow through the snow or hop through a mire of mud to hide his traditional candy treats for Andover children, the Easter Bunny has notified Recreation Director Leslie Bartow that he will have to forget about a candy hunt for this year.

The Bunny will be at the Andover Recreation Park lodge between the hours of 1 and 2:30 p.m. Saturday to see that the youngest of his friends have a treat, however. Pre-Schoolers and children who are in the first and second grades may gather there to collect some sweets.

GS Banquet Well Attended

Some 680 mothers and daughters attended the Andover-North Andover Neighborhood Girl Scout Banquet held Wednesday at the Greater Lawrence Regional Vocational-Technical High School. Fred Tarbox, chairman of the Vo-Tech school board, spoke to

The members of Cadette Troop 46 led the audience in group singing and further entertainment was provided by Junior Troop 87 which presented a puppet show under the direction of Mrs. Frank Serio Jr., leader.

The closing ceremony was led by Senior Scout Troop 39.

Among guests were Miss Emily Heald, president of the Merrimack River Girl Scout Council, Mrs. Charles Davis, executive director, Mrs. Willson Roads, field director, Mrs. Charles Clark, Merrimack neighborhood chairman, James Doherty of the GS finance committee, Mrs. John Holmes Jr., junior and cadette consultant and Mrs. Edward Warwick, camp committee member.

Andover Police Busy More Tickets

Motor Vehicles Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin, released this week the analysis of the "no-fix" traffic citation experience for 1966, the first full year of operation under the tamper-proof ticket system.

The report shows that Andover police issued 803 citations in 1966, up from 309 or an increase of 159.9 percent over 1965. Fewer citations were issued in Lawrence, where a 19.5 percent decline was recorded.

The statewide results conformed closely to the first six-month figures published last summer with an overall increase of 2.6% more citations issued in the first full year of "no-fix" than were issued in the preceding year of 1965 before the new system was in operation. Registrar McLaughlin pointed out that this increase was less than the percentage increase in registered motor vehicles and licensed operators from 1965 to 1966, both of which increased nearly 4% during the same period. The registrar said, "The increase in police officers was less than one-half of one percent during this period. I think we've got to give credit to our police for

More Tickets Issued Under No-Fix System

Motor Vehicles Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin, released this week the analysis of the "no-fix" traffic citation experience for 1966, the first full year of operation under the tamper-proof ticket system.

The report shows that Andover police issued 803 citations in 1966, up from 309 or an increase of 139.9 percent over 1965. Fewer citations were issued in Lawrence, where a 19.5 percent decline was recorded.

The statewide results conformed closely to the first six-month figures published last summer with an overall increase of 2.6% more citations issued in the first full year of "no-fix" than were issued in the preceding year of 1965 before the new system was in operation.

Registrar McLaughlin pointed out that this increase was less than the percentage increase in registered motor vehicles and licensed operators from 1965 to 1966, both of which increased nearly 4% during the same period.

The registrar said, "The increase in police officers was less than one-half of one percent during this period. I think we've got to give credit to our police for achieving this increased degree of enforcement notwithstanding the acute shortage of police manpower as compared with the growth in vehicles and drivers."

Local police departments, statewide, issued approximately 20,000 more tickets in 1966 than in 1965. Both State Police and the registry showed a combined decline of about 13,000 citations as compared with the preceding year due, the registrar said, to changed policy regarding defective equipment violations such as brakes, lights, etc. Registry equipment tags were used for such violations while the citations were issued for moving violations only. More than 60,000 equipment tags were issued by the registry and the State Police during 1966.

While the total number of citations issued by local police departments increased by slightly more than 10%, some municipalities varied widely from the norm. Gloucester increased its citations by 351%, Falmouth by 254%, and Wilmington by 422%. Waltham declined by 66%, Watertown by 31%, and Boston by 13%.

A separate section of the registrar's report showed action taken by district and municipal courts throughout the Commonwealth on traffic complaints requested on "no-fix" tickets. Statewide, all courts showed complaints denied on less than 1% of citations but, here again, some courts reported much higher percentage of denials. Fitchburg denied 9.7%, Edgartown denied 14.6%, and Newton denied 5.4%. The registrar said that he did not have any explanation for the wide variations in practice for the municipalities and courts reporting.

Registrar McLaughlin said, "Our job is to issue the citation books, to audit, control and account for them. This we have done and I am well satisfied with the integrity of our system. The registry has, however, no jurisdiction over the enforcement operations of the police departments or the decisions made in the Courts."

2 Stations Likely For Tyer Site

The Selectmen met Monday for another discussion on the placement of municipal buildings and though they did not vote, there was substantial agreement among the four members present that both a fire station and a police station can and should be located on the old Tyer warehouse property which is to be acquired from C. Lincoln Giles.

Selectman Sidney P. White presented a sketch to show that location of both facilities on the land available would be possible. The discussion was of two facilities with a common heating plant.

The purchase of the Giles land is delayed by legal complications for the time being. In short, his bank is thus far unwilling to permit demolition of the warehouse shell prior to transfer of the mortgage on the property and the town cannot legally pay for purchase until all the terms of its sales agreement have been met. Since the town does not want to assume responsibility for demolition, negotiations on this point will continue.

The board authorized Town Manager Richard Bowen to confer with the Conservation Commission about the possibility of adding the Cottage Farm, or White property in South Andover to the list of lands to be acquired as green areas, and to begin negotiations with the owners. The board already has authorization to purchase the land which was previously considered, but found unsatisfactory for a school site. It may be proposed at some future Town Meeting to transfer funds available in the land acquisition fund to the Conservation Commission for the White purchase, thereby make a 50% reimbursement possible.

Board Chairman Philip K. Allen was not at the special Tuesday meeting because of an out-of-town funeral.

The Red Cross KnowsAndover Has Disasters Of Its Own

Earlier this month, 55 Red Cross disaster specialists were put on the job in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio where more than 4000 families required disaster relief, caused by wide spread floods. Over 500 families, made homeless by the rising crest of the Ohio River, were housed in a number of Red Cross shelters. We are only too prone to say: "This can't happen here". disaster committee of the Andover RC says that while this area had not had a serious flood in about thirty years and a bad hurricane in about ten, nevertheless the Red Cross is always ready to give emergency care to disaster victims, regardless of whether many families are made homeless by floods, hurricanes or tornadoes, or just one in an apartment fire. Such a need arose last summer when a family with six children, ages ten days to 15 years, was burnt out in Andover. A Red Cross volunteer visited the mother in her temporary quarters, learned of the family's needs, aided in their rehabilitation and supplied some badly needed clothing for this family.

According to national RC reports for 1966 a total of 821 families were aided in this state, most of them were fire victims. Red Cross disaster assistance in Massachusetts totaled $117,778. Berthold further emphasized that relief is given as necessary to supplement the resources of the victims. That need and not loss is the basis upon which assistance is given," he said. He added that Red Cross assistance is an outright gift from the American people which involves no obligation to repay.

All the funds necessary for these relief operations are raised by voluntary contributions, either through United Funds or directly. While in major catastrophes the American Red Cross takes over with a large staff of highly trained professional specialists, the main burden of the relief work still falls on local volunteers, particularly in the event of so-called minor disasters. Members of the volunteer group will swiftly bring food, clothing, shelter or medical help as needed. Perhaps most important of all, they can bring hope to the family that has been wiped out by fire, flood or other catastrophe, Berthold reports.

Hockey Team Appreciative

The Andover Hockey Assn. issued a letter of appreciation to Andover residents this week for the support given during the recent fund drive.

Richard E. Neal of the Association reports that because of this support, the organization reached its goal and was able to carry out with a planned trip to Canada.

While on the week long trip, the Andover hockey team played five hockey games in four cities of Ontario. It managed to tie the games played in Toronto and Hamilton, but was defeated in London and twice in Niagara Falls. Neal's letter said that "Although this record may not appear spectacular, we certainly feel that the boys learned a great deal."

In appreciation, the association has awarded two gifts to local residents who contributed to the drive. The gifts, donated by area merchants, were awarded to Mrs. Robert DuLong and Mrs. David Starkweather.

OIL INDUSTRY PAYROLL GROWS

The payroll for oil industry employees in Massachusetts will exceed $100 million in 1967, according to John F. Battles of Andover, executive director of the Massachusetts Petroleum Council.

Battles made his estimate from an industry survey which showed 22,767 oil industry workers currently are earning $99,852,000 in the Bay State. Expanding consumption will require still more personnel this year to maintain the industry's 185 bulk plants and terminals, 4,461 service stations and 1,863 retail fuel oil establishments in Massachusetts.

Owing to sulphur particles in the upper atmosphere from an 80,000 square mile forest fire in British Columbia, people in Great Britain saw a moon that was bluish in color, September 26, 1950.

Projects Win Ribbons

Every member of the Andover Boots & Saddle 4-H Club won ribbons at the Essex County 4-H Horse Club competition held Saturday at Essex Agricultural & Technical High School.

Contestants were judged on how they prepared and presented their projects.

Andover winners, their awards and their entries were: Pamela Darby, excellent, "How to make Hobbles"; Ernest Darby, excellent, "How to make Emergency Rope Halters"; Catherine Babicki, very good, "How to tie a Hackamore"; Michael Bernardin, very good, "How to make Evergreen Rope Halters"; Diane Crossley, very good, "How to make a Boot Scraper"; Karen Kirk, very good, "Evolution of Horses"; Katherine Kirk, very good, "How to make Lead Ropes"; Lynn Lewis, very good, "How to make a Bareback Saddle"; Stephen Zaremba, very good, "How to make a Bucking Barrel"; and Susan Buchan, good, "How to make a Crop".

On April 1 the Andover Club will participate in a Field Day for Essex County 4-H Horse Clubs at the Topsfield Fair grounds. Here members will learn how to prepare their mounts for a show and how to show them in a Fitting and Showmanship class. A judge will demonstrate how to groom and clip Western Horses, English Pleasure Horses, Ponies and Hunters and one member from each club will be selected to show horses under the directions of this judge.

The Boots & Saddle Club will meet March 29 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Andover Recreation Park. New members are invited to attend.

Hobkirk Retires

Maxwell M. Hobkirk, 18 Roband Rd., will retire from Western Electric on March 31 after completing more than 40 years with the company. His last assignment was department chief, methods and procedural auditing, at the Merrimack Valley Works.

Hobkirk joined Western Electric at the Kearny (N.J.) works in 1927 as a wage incentive engineer, and was promoted to the rank of section chief in 1929. In 1943 he was promoted to department chief in wage incentives. He was transferred to the Lawrence Plant in 1954.

Hobkirk and his wife have one daughter and five granddaughters living in New Jersey.

The Hobkirks plan to visit friends and other retired Western Electric employees in Florida this month, and later to spend the summer at their camp on Lake Waccamaw, N.H.

Church Presents Dance Group

A repertoire dance company will present a creative dance program "Athletes of God", at the Unitarian-Universalist Church at 8 p.m. March 29.

The program is sponsored by the adult education committee of the church.

Dance Workshop, a company of professional and semi-professional performers, seeks to explore with audiences the meaning of dance, the process of choreography and the use of dance as a valid church art. Its Andover program will consist of three parts: a brief history of dance in the church; examples of the raw materials of the dancer/choreographer and a selection of several dances including "Early Dance," "Communication," "Lament" and "Resolution."

Dancers in the troupe are largely students of the Martha Graham technique, although they do not rely solely on it for their choreographic expression.

Mrs. George K. Beach, member of the dance group and author of a recently published book on dance in the church, comments: "We feel that since so many of our ultimate concerns do in fact border on the verbally inexpressible, dance can help us to explore and present the immediacy of such concerns."

The public is welcome to attend the Unitarian performance. There will be a minimal admission fee.

RUMMAGE SALE
A rummage sale will be held at Free Christian Church between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Saturday, April 1.

The proceeds will go toward the Talent Dollar Fund.

The Only Guarantee

The district committee for the Greater Lawrence Regional Vocational - Technical High School forgot one thing when it announced plans for expanding the program and the facilities of a school that is still too young to be widely appreciated - the sales pitch.

They forgot what every hard-sell drummer, vacuum cleaner salesman and Fuller brush man has known since the first of them looked a penny pinching consumer in the eye: no matter how solid-Gold the product, it has got to be ballyhoo'd to be sold. Or, to state it as an axiom, if the customer doesn't know he needs it, whatever it is, you're dead!

It is a beginner's lesson and the Vo-Tech committee has learned it the hard way.

The regional board announced a few weeks ago that it wanted authorization from the four partners in its educational combine to borrow $2,182,000 for an addition to school. The cities and the towns got their first word of the plans from the press, hardly politic. A cry of indignation arose from some quarters.

The result was a strategic withdrawal. Confronted with demands that it document the need, that it be more specific about the educational specifications and the structural plans and that it be prepared to detail not only construction but operating costs, the district board quickly agreed to delay the project. The vote to rescind the request for bond authorization followed.

It was a prudent move. The first test of the proposal was to come in North Andover where the local school committee was primed to oppose approval. One such defeat and the Vo-Tech committee would, under the terms of the law establishing the district, have to forget its initial request and alter the proposal in order to make a second attempt.

Now that the air is cleared, the committee is in a position to establish a more reasonable deadline for construction of the addition it envisions and an orderly procedure for informing the communities involved about the values they can expect to derive from investment in an expansion that will double the enrollment.

In the meantime, the committee would do well to at least solicit the opinion of educators in Andover, Lawrence, North Andover and Methuen about the program they contemplate and to keep the town governments posted along the way as plans develop. The effort should yield some worthwhile suggestions, and some valuable support when it is time to convince voters.

And certainly the municipalities in the district should be given every advance notice possible on the date for a future request for bond authorization. The men who handle budget worries are concerned already with the cost of major projects and need time for consideration of additional commitments.

Finally, the board would be well advised to schedule its next request so that the bond issue can be acted upon by a regular, annual Town Meeting in the three communities where TM action is required.

This is the only way to guarantee that the regional school proposal will receive the attention it deserves.

"B" RATING

The Merrimack between Lowell and Haverhill is now rated as Class D. Between Haverhill and the mouth of the river in Newburyport, it varies between Class C and Class E, the ultimate level of pollution according to state classifications.

As a Class C stream, the Merrimack would support some forms of fish and it would be regarded as suitable for surface recreation. Swimming could be permitted in a "B" river, a greater variety of fish life could be supported and purification for drinking purposes would be a simpler process.

What position the Town of Andover will take at the April hearing has yet to be determined. Its representative to the regional planning commission, Arthur Neumark, voted for the "C" rating with others on that body, but this vote represents his view as a regional committeeman. The Selectmen are due to consider the town's official position at their regular meeting on Monday.

It has been estimated that it would cost Andover, Lawrence, North Andover and Methuen $21.4 to build a regional sewage treatment facility that would permit bringing the Merrimack to a "C" level. This is predicated upon the supposition, of course, that Lowell would build a $27 million plant to process the sewage being dumped up river.

In order to meet the standards of a "B" classification it is said that it would cost Lowell $38.5; Greater Lawrence, $28.5; and Haverhill, $16.5.

Most of this added expense for the Greater Lawrence area would have to be born by Lawrence because that city would be required to foot the bill for treating the water that it dumps into the river from storm drains.

The April 4 hearing is to be held at 2 p.m. in the auditorium at Lowell State College.

Appearing there to speak for the Leagues of Women Voters in Andover, North Andover, Lowell, Tewksbury, Greater Newburyport and Chelmsford will be Mrs. Rudolph Morin of the Andover League.

The Leagues' statement will call a "B" classification "essential" to the future water needs of the area.

Pointing to the fact that increases in population and industry are sure to force more and more communities to turn to the Merrimack for drinking water, the League statement reads: "With higher living standards and more leisure time for recreation we need to make sure that our rivers, wetlands, shorelines and small streams are free from their present condition of pollution. It would be sad indeed if the paradox were to continue and with all the leisure time for recreation there were no suitable outdoor recreational areas just because of careless neglect.

"We are also concerned with the need to provide a habitat for wildlife...."

"We recognize that this "B" classification is a goal for the future. Time and money are the requisites for meeting this goal. We suggest, however, that the goal be set now so that realistic plans can be made...."

teachers the voice in school affairs the statute intended and have demonstrated a complete lack of understanding of the needs of contemporary education and the role of the teacher in it."

(The Andover School Committee signed its first contract with the AEA, the local organization for professional school personnel, on February 14 after peaceful negotiations.)

The Rationale

Regarding the rationale behind the proposed legislation, Hebert said: "Some school committees have actually refused to bargain with teachers at all, on the absurd ground that the statute does not apply to them, although this position is in direct conflict with the plain and unambiguous language of the statute itself, and is contrary to the legal opinion of the Counsel for the Commissioner of Education."

"In other communities," he continued, "school committees have arbitrarily and unilaterally submitted school budgets on a 'take it or leave it' basis, while still others have withdrawn previously-made offers at the first sign of teacher independence in an obvious attempt to punish teachers for exercising their statutory right to negotiate."

Hebert said the remedies in the statute have not proved effective in many cases, prompting the MTA to "reluctantly come to the conclusion that strikes and work stoppages by teachers are necessary and inevitable in the face of the type of school committee intransigence encountered...."

The MTA official added that "This is most disturbing to teachers who have historically demonstrated a deep and abiding respect for the law...."

Hebert's statement continued: "The present restrictive statutory language makes teachers second-class citizens by depriving them of a right-the right to strike-which is granted to employees in the private sector of our economy. It seems unreasonable to rule it legal on the one hand to bring a huge city to a grinding halt in a dispute over pennies an hour, and on the other hand to rule it illegal for teachers to protest intolerable educational conditions that dissipate their talents and the talents of students under their charge."

(Material for this article supplied by Mrs. Barbara Sessions, curator for the Andover Historical Society.)

Andover has traditionally a fondness for causes, and she not always been conservative about supporting them.

At least it is possible to draw such a conclusion from an exhibit of Flags and Banners recently played by the Andover Historical Society in connection with its annual President's Reception at Amos Blanchard House.

By far the major attraction of this event was an enormous flag which hung from the top floor, down the stairwell of the Society's headquarters to the basement and white pavement of the entrance hall below. It is too large to exhibit in any other way.

The flag was made by the late Old Frye Village, which since become Shawshoek. It flown from the Village Green during the Civil War each news of a Union victory from North. With its 34 handcut stripes this splendid relic speaks of world of 1861 to 1863. It is added interest because it came from the Morrisson family who had preserved it since the death of Alexander Morrisson, the first custodian. He used to keep massive ensign in Poor's Workshop between the occasions it was unfurled from a derrick, especially built to accommodate its great length of 212 feet.

The Society is also trustee of a painted anti-slavery banner used in Frye Village, probably for abolitionist meetings and sessions. On one side a dramatic scene is depicted; a grief-stricken slave mother stands in a field protesting the sale of her infant child and emblazoned on the top are the words, "Woman's Heart is Bleeding, Slave Mother's Voice be Hushed."

On the reverse side, a Negro kneels in chains silhouetted against a background of waves and distance is the fullrigged ship dropped him on a deserted shore. The banner cries, "Am I Not a Man and A Brother?"

Anti-slavery sentiment in Andover was strong for many years before the famous Harriet Beecher Stowe became a resident. Much evidence of the public concern that day is provided by the manuscript book of the West Port Anti-Slavery Society, organized in 1837 and later fused with groups of like-minded worshippers at other churches to form Christian Church, established in 1846.

By far the major attraction at this event was an enormous town flag which hung from the third floor, down the stairwell of the Society's headquarters to the black and white pavement of the entrance hall below. It is too large to be exhibited in any other way.

The flag was made by the ladies of Old Frye Village, which has since become Shawsheen. It was flown from the Village Green there during the Civil War each time news of a Union victory drifted North. With its 34 handcut stars, this splendid relic speaks of the world of 1861 to 1863. It is of added interest because it came to the Historical Society directly from the Morrisson family which had preserved it since the days of Alexander Morrison, the flag's custodian. He used to keep the massive ensign in Poor's Wagon Shop between the occasions when it was unfurled from a decked shaft, especially built to accommodate its great length of 212 feet.

The Society is also trustee for a painted anti-slavery banner that was used in Frye Village, probably for abolitionist meetings and processions. On one side a dramatic scene is depicted: a grief stricken slave mother stands in a cotton field protesting the sale of her infant child and emblazoned across the top are the words, "When Woman's Heart is Bleeding, Should Woman's Voice be Hushed." On the reverse side, a Negro man kneels in chains silhouetted against a background of waves and in the distance is the fullrigged ship that dropped him on a deserted shore. Anti-slavery sentiment in Andover was strong for many years before the famous Harriet Beecher Stowe became a resident. Moving evidence of the public concern of that day is provided by the manuscript book of the West Parish Anti-Slavery Society, organized in 1837 and later fused with groups of like-minded worshippers from other churches to form Free Christian Church, established in 1846.

Nothing New
The preamble to the constitution of this body reminds us that the Civil Rights movement is not an invention of our times:

"Whereas there are now in this land more than two millions of human beings possessed of the same deathless spirits and heirs to the same immortal hopes and destinies with ourselves who are nevertheless deprived of these their sacred rights and kept in the most cruel and abject bondage - a bondage under which human beings (made in the image of God and redeemed by a Saviour's blood) are bought and sold and are regarded as goods and chattels . . . we therefore deem it our duty to ourselves, to our oppressed brethren, to our Government, to the world and to God to do all we can to end this oppression and to effect an immediate and entire emancipation of the oppressed".

Signers of this outspoken manifesto who were deacons of the church, are from well-known West Parish families - Ebenezer Lovejoy, Peter Smith, Moses Parker, Timothy Foster, and others who became identified with Andover's concern for its "oppressed brethren" and ultimately with the Union cause in the Civil War.

Less weighted with tragic consequences, and probably far more popular in its day, was the Temperance Movement. Andover had at least two thriving temperance societies which were formed in the 1840's and one which survived until 1871. Minute books of these groups contain membership lists and colorful accounts of their weekly meetings. Along with these written records, the Historical Society is also custodian for three painted banners which doubtless

TRACK HONOR

Charles G. Hatch Jr. of Andover is among students at Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Maine who have received freshmen track numerals as members of the indoor track team.

By examining your trees now you can spot troubles that lie ahead in spring, reports Dr. Philip Rusden, pathologist of the Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories. Slanting rays of March sunlight on barren twigs and limbs reveal egg masses of insects. Bagworms, egg cases and cocoons stand out naked against the sky.

Egg masses of tent caterpillars are collar-like in shape, completely encircling a twig. About three-fourths of an inch long, each egg mass glistens a dark brown and contains several hundred eggs. The tent caterpillar prefers apple, cherry and sometimes peach and pear trees, reports Dr. Rusden.

Cankerworm or inchworm eggs masses lie under the very tips of twigs. They are irregular in shape, dark brown and shiny. Each egg is shaped like a tiny flower pot, and there may be 50 or more in a cluster.

Gypsy moth egg masses are yellowish brown, big and conspicuous. They are usually found on the trunks of trees, sides of buildings, stone walls and homes.

The brown-tail moth winters over as a small caterpillar in a web woven of tiny branchlets, a leaf-eater, which usually appears on pears, apple and peach trees and such shade trees as oak, beech, willow and some of the shrubs. A single web may contain 500 caterpillars.

Eggs of aphids are not as easily seen because they are usually found in shallow crevices of the bark of trees and shrubs. They are small, oval and glistening black and are common around buds.

Leaf rollers, which affect oak and apple, deposit their eggs on the bark of the trunk, camouflaged to blend with the tree. As many as 50 eggs may be in a single cluster.

Bagworm egg cases may be seen hanging in both evergreens and deciduous trees. They should be clipped off and destroyed before

"Too many tree owners," says Dr. Rusden, "remain unaware of injurious insect pests until defoliation is under way. Spotting these pests now and planning a spraying program is the best insurance against insect damage." Dr. Rusden suggests that dormant sprays should be applied to trees just before the buds break. The first foliage spray is very important and subsequent foliage sprays will keep the pests under control.

Funny, you don't look like a 4-cycle, 1498cc, 73hp, overhead valve V-4.

Bet you still think SAAB has only one kind of engine. Our famous 2-cycle, 3-cylinder "Shrike" engine. Well don't bet on it. Because SAAB now has a new V-4 engine, too. Zero to 50 in 10 seconds. Top speeds of over 90 mph. More power for acceleration. For hills. For safer passing. (And V-4 SAABs have front wheel disc brakes, for stopping all that power.) Funny thing, but it looks like this new high-performance V-4 should make the rally-winningest car in the world an even bigger winner.

Easter In Full Bloom At Valentine's

Easter is a time for flowers. Colorful blooms will brighten any home or enhance a new spring outfit. You are sure to find just what you are looking for in flowers of all kinds at Valentine Flowers, located at 27 Main Street in downtown Andover. Just walk through their doors and beautiful, fragrant displays of fresh, spring flowers will convince you that spring is truly just around the corner.

You will find lovely plants which make wonderful gifts to be enjoyed on Easter and for many months to come. Valentine's has a large selection of the traditional Easter lilies in a variety of sizes. In addition, you may choose from daffodils, azaleas, tulips, gladioli, hyacinths, hydrangeas and African violets. These are all attractively potted for gift-giving and are sure to please that very special person on Easter.

If you prefer a floral arrangement, Valentine's will be happy to make up a spring bouquet of the very freshest flowers in a beautiful mixed assortment or in flowers of your choice. For those corsages, for the Easter Parade, Valentine's is featuring orchids in white or lavender and the exquisite cymbidium orchids which come in white and a multitude of pastel shades including pink, green, yellow and brown.

Deliveries are made two and three times daily to areas in Andover, Greater Lawrence and Lowell. If your loved ones do not live in this area, Valentine's can also serve you, as they are a dealer for F.T.D., a national wire flower service with 11,000 members. This means that they can assure you delivery anywhere in the United States and Canada. You may make your selection from a Floral Selection Guide available in the store or you may simply call Valentine Flowers and they will take care of everything.

Valentine's suggests that you keep in mind that this is a busy week-end for all florists. To be assured of prompt delivery and avoiding disappointment, you would be wise to stop in or call today or Friday. Especially when wiring flowers, these orders should be in by noon of the day before a holiday. Phone Valentine Flowers at 475-2929.

Postal Minutemen

Andover postal workers were praised this week for well over 90% participation in a Savings Bond Program conducted for Federal employees. Their reward, the coveted Concord Minuteman Award. Among those at presentation ceremonies were, left to right, Postmaster Francis J. Mooney; Daniel J. Day, deputy regional director for the Post Office Department, who made the award; Edward Chlebowski, president of Local 2986, National Association of Letter Carriers; and James M. O'Hagan, post office foreman.

'Over 60' Gathering Set

J. Everett Collins, well known for his work with school and community choral groups, will conduct group singing for the April 1 gathering of citizens over 60 organized by the Andover Council on Aging.

Also planned for the afternoon program, which is to be held between 2 and 4 p.m. at Central School, is a showing of photo slides of historical Andover by George Walsh, principal of Stowe School.

The Council on Aging, an agency of the municipal government, has invited all the town's "over 60" residents for the April 1 party. Organized to help the older residents of Andover, the council recently sent out questionnaires to 2700 Andover citizens who are 60 years of age and over. These have been returned and are now being tabulated by the committee.

The April meeting is to acquaint those interested with the results and to explore the areas in which the work of the local council can be most helpful.

Any and all interested citizens of the town may attend the meeting but the committee especially hopes that those who returned the questionnaire will be present. Residents who are 60 or older who did not receive a questionnaire are also invited.

DPW Workers To Vote On Union

Some 50 public works and cemetery employees of the Town of Andover will vote by secret ballot in the near future to determine whether or not they will be represented by the Massachusetts City Town & County Employees Union of the AFL-CIO.

DPW employees organized a local of this union some time ago, electing Philip Rollins president. Last week the State Labor Relations Commission held a public hearing preparatory to the scheduling of an election for the final determination as to who the bargaining agent will be. At this hearing the commission ruled that in any event, a bargaining unit for these workers cannot represent clerical or supervisory personnel or the heads of the two town departments.

The SLRC said this week that a hearing will be scheduled within 10 days.

Until organization of the union local, employees of the department of public works were active in and dominated the Andover Town Employees Assn., a group initially organized for all town employees. This group has not been active since the passage of a state law legalizing collective bargaining for municipal personnel.

F. Bert Volker, president of the ATLA told the TOWNSMAN Monday that the organization he heads is now "in limbo."

Principal Philip Wormwood presented a list of elective courses he plans to schedule for Andover High next year which will be offered to students on a non-credit basis. The program planned would require no additional instructional help, but would make use of teachers who would otherwise monitor study halls.

Hawk Plant Raytheon's Largest

Increased production of Hawk ground-to-air missile systems at Raytheon Co.'s Andover operation cited in the company's 1966 annual report now being mailed to more than 25,000 stockholders across the country.

The report features record sales and earnings and increased diversification by the company on a broad business front. Earnings rose 67 percent over 1965, reached a new high for the second consecutive year. Sales were up 41 percent over the previous year, at $709 million, were substantially higher than the previous record of $599 million in 1962. The Andover operation is the company's largest, both in area and in number of employees. The plant, employing more than 4,200 persons, is part of the Missile Systems Division, which also operates plants in Bristol, Tennessee; Oxnard, California; and Lowell and Bedford, Mass.

Commenting on the past year's activities, Harry A. Loebel, Andover plant manager, said that production of the basic Hawk system continued at a high level while work went forward on the Self-Propelled Hawk and the Improved Hawk, which recently was tested successfully at the White Sands Missile Range, New Mexico. Additionally, delivery of Hawk batteries to Saudi Arabia for their defense system was initiated during the year.

In the letter to stockholders, Chairman Charles F. Adams and President Thomas L. Phillips pointed

Watters Is For Recreation

Selectman Robert A. Watters has been named to head a committee of eleven to study whether or not there is a need for recreational facilities in Andover and to recommend to the Selectmen what sort of facilities seem desirable.

Watters himself suggested that a committee be formed during a campaign for re-election earlier this month. His particular interest then was in a possible plan for construction of a recreation facility with private funds for operation through the municipal recreation department.

Ten people will be asked to work with Watters. They are Frank Hickey, Arthur Jowett, Sally Reynolds, Donald Sagaser, Michael Gorman, Joseph Dorsey, Theodore Dreau, Edward A. Gordon, James D. Wilson and Marjorie Hart.
